The Emerging Artist Market – an area in the show dedicated to talented and up and coming makers – will also return, with 16 unique artists in various disciplines.

“Bringing back the One of a Kind Show for its 5th Spring Show is an absolute privilege. As the show takes place right before a number of spring and summer holidays and events, we see it as a fantastic opportunity to find special one-of-a-kind gifts,” said Kathleen Hogan, director of sales for the One of a Kind Show. “The Spring Show has continued to develop and expand, and our shoppers know that the experience will continue to feature vibrant, new art and exhibitions every year.”

“The show is also a fun way to shop with programming like fashion shows, live music and hands on crafting. We are thrilled to partner again with the arts organization Marwen to produce art workshops for attendees of all ages,” Hogan continued. “The One of a Kind Show is unique in that it connects so many different communities.”
